

- The Action Clock will be dealer-controlled.
- Dealers will start the Action Clock once the last card is dealt. When players fold in turn, the Action Clock will be reset.
- Once there is a bet or raise, the dealer will count the bet, announce the amount, then start the clock. If a player calls the bet, the clock instantly starts on the next player.
- Dealers will advise 10 seconds remaining and kill hands facing a bet and announce check if not facing a bet. If there is a tie, the player's verbal/physical action will be recognized.
- There will never be a need to pause the clock unless there is an extreme situation.
- Each player will receive four (4) 30-second time extension chips per day.
- All unused time extension chips will be removed at the end of each day.
- Players will throw out the extension chips in a forward motion and the dealer will press the time extension button to add 30 more seconds to the Action Clock.
